Overview of Travel and Objectives

Global Energy Show (GES) is one of North America's leading energy conferences. GES attracts over 30,000 attendees from over 100 countries, with 20,000 companies doing business and more than 500 exhibitors showcasing their products and services. GES presents an excellent platform to highlight Saskatchewan's leadership in the energy and resources sector, foster collaboration with key industry stakeholders, and contribute to the province's long-term economic growth and sustainability.

The conference also serves as a prime opportunity to promote Saskatchewan's critical mineral resource development and leadership in creating an attractive and stable investment environment through clear regulations and unique incentive programs.

While in Calgary, Minister Young presented a keynote address on Saskatchewan's energy future at the show's Executive Conference. The Minister participated in an executive roundtable - Attracting International Investment to Canada's Energy Sector. The Minister also toured tradeshow booths, attended program sessions and met with multiple stakeholders.
